EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Vietnam General Rubber Corporation entered into an Authorisation and Licence Agreement with the Government of Lao PDR on the 18th of January 2005 for the development and the operation, over a period of 50 years, of a 10,000 ha rubber plantation and the establishment and operation of a rubber processing factory in Lao PDR. The area selected for the development of the plantation is the district of Bachiang. 33 villages, totaling a population of 12,644 people, have been directly impacted by the project, having lost all or part of their agricultural lands. In October 2006 8,000 ha out of the 10,000 ha had already been planted and the remaining cleared.

A Feasibility Study was undertaken in June and July 2006, reviewing the technical, financial, social and environmental aspects of the project and updating the pre-feasibility study undertaken by GERUCO earlier. Although the Feasibility Study is globally positive, in particular in financial terms, with a net benefit expected for the Vietnamese company, VLRC, of US$0.25B for a 20 year cycle and conservative market price for rubber, the study also raises concerns of a social nature in terms of compensation and employment and calls for an operationalisation of the Authorisation and Licence Agreement.

The Consultant noted indeed that major existing Laotian legal instruments such as the Environmental Protection Law of 1999, and the Prime Minister Decree 192 on the Compensation and Resettlement of Development Project, had not been complied with during the development of the project and that negative environmental and social impacts had started to materialize, without plans in place to mitigate them.

The environmental impacts observed are those commonly associated with industrial plantation projects, and are related to an easier access to wildlife and associated increased pressure, erosion and sedimentation during the preparation of the plantation, risks of pollution by improper storage and handling of chemicals and poor waste management practices. The major social impacts noted during the consultations undertaken by the Consultant result from the loss of land and access to land (83% of the agricultural lands have been lost) and the loss of source of revenues, associated with the inconsistent compensation approach taken by the Vietnamese company.

In order to address the impacts created by the project, the Consultant recommends a number of measures that should be incorporated into an Environmental Management Plan, suggests that a Compensation Programme is put in place with the objective to provide a fair and uniform cash compensation to the households, that the Vietnamese company, VLRC, puts together a Social Plan addressing employment concerns, that a Transition Programme is set up to ensure that the severely affected households are not worse off because of the Project, and that an Income Restoration Programme is developed.

INTRODUCTION

This report, prepared for Agence Française de Développement (AFD), presents an assessment of the environmental and social impacts created by the rubber plantation project (the Project) of the Viet-Lao Rubber Company (VLRC) in Champasack province, in the south of Laos. It is based on field investigations and consultations in the area impacted by the Project, undertaken from September 2006 to November 2006, by Earth Systems Lao staff and a team of experts of the Nabong Faculty of Agriculture (Dr. Silinthone Sacklokham, Dr. Nhot Phrachomphon, Fongsamouth Suthammavong, Souklaty Sysaneth and Khosada Vongsana).

The first part (Part A) of the report presents the background and legal framework of the Project; Part B describes the Project, its components and environment; Part C details the environmental and social impacts of the activities undertaken so far, and Part D presents directions for the development of the Environmental and Social Plans.

We wish here to express our sincere gratitude to the various people met during the investigations, in particular GOL officials, the Viet-Lao Rubber Company, the Vietnam General Rubber Corporation (GERUCO) and all the villagers met.

PART A – BACKGROUND AND LEGISLATIVE FRAMEWORK

1 - Brief description

Vietnam General Rubber Corporation (GERUCO), a large state enterprise managing 220,000 ha of rubber plantations in Vietnam, entered into an Authorisation and Licence Agreement (ALA) with the Government of Lao PDR on the 18th of January 2005 for the development and the operation of a 10,000 ha rubber plantation and the establishment and operation of a rubber processing factory in Lao PDR. A dedicated Company, the Viet-Lao Rubber Company (VLRC) was created for this purpose by GERUCO, owned at 100% by 8 rubber companies controlled by GERUCO. The ALA grants to VLRC concession rights for the 10,000 ha rubber plantation in Champasack Province for a duration of 50 years. The Investor, GERUCO, is to invest US$22M for the project development and operation. The area selected for the development of the plantation is the district of Bachiang, where suitable soil conditions were found for rubber plantation. 33 villages, with a total population of 12,644 people, are directly impacted by the project, having lost all or part of their agricultural lands. Plantations started during the rainy season 2005 and continued during the rainy season 2006. In October 2006, nearly 8,000 ha out of the total of 10,000 ha had been planted with rubber trees, leaving the remaining 2,000 ha for the rainy season 2007, and more than the 10,000 ha[1] of the Concession had been cleared.

2 - Political background

This Authorisation and Licence Agreement is the result of high level decisions taken between the Lao and the Vietnamese Governments since 2004. The VLRC Project was developed over the years in the spirit of a number of agreements between the Laotian and the Vietnamese Governments, such as:

- The Agreement on Economic, Cultural, Technical and Scientific Cooperation of 2004;
- The Aide-memoir of the 10th of May 2004 on Lao-Vietnamese Cooperation; and high-level meetings between the two governments:

- Visit of the Lao Deputy Prime Minister to GERUCO on the 5th of May 2004;

[1] 10,878 ha at the beginning of October, clearing of the land was continuing in November 06.

- Meeting on Cooperation for the Development of rubber plantation between the Lao Vice Minister and a delegation of GERUCO at the Lao Committee for Planning and Cooperation on the 16th of June 2004;
- Meeting between the deputy director general of the Department for the Promotion of Foreign Investments of CPC and a delegation of GERUCO on the 21st of June 2004, setting the principles for the creation of a Vietnamese owned Company for the development of a rubber plantation.

Following the approval by the People Committee of the Province of Champasack, on the 27th of October 2004, the note 120 of the People Committee of the district of Bachiang transferred 19,000[2] hectares to the VLRC for the objective of developing the rubber plantation project.

3 – Authorization and Licence Agreement

The Authorisation and Licence Agreement (ALA) that was signed on the 18th of January 2005 between GOL and GERUCO granting concession rights for a 10,000 ha rubber plantation for a period of 50 years, sets the framework for the development and the operation of the project.

According to the ALA, the Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry (MAF) is the party to approve the plans that have to be submitted by the Company prior to the start of the implementation. These plans are mainly the survey for concessionary approval and a technical and economic feasibility study (Art. 4).

As per the ALA, the Viet-Lao Rubber Company has the obligation to:

- Provide information on work method, schedule, drawing of potential land survey, and later, survey schedule for concessionary approval to the Government.
- Carry out a technical feasibility study and submit it to the Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry for concessionary approval prior to undertaking of the Project.
- Arrange leasehold contract with appropriate governmental agencies within 30 days after finishing land surveys.
- Pay land lease fees in accordance with the regulations of concerned ministries.
- Ensure that adverse social impacts of the Project are effectively mitigated in a manner in conformity with people's ethnic life style.
- Undertake the Project according to the Agreement and as set forth in the investment and technical feasibility study within the Concession Land approved by MAF.
- Provide services to villagers that would be interested in developing small-scale rubber plantations.
- Give priority to Lao nationals in recruiting and hiring employees.
- Transfer, to the extent possible, relevant skill to Lao employees.
- Hire employees in conformity with the prevailing Lao Labour Law.
- Be liable for payment of Lao employee's health care as required by the Law.
- Adhere to standards and practices concerning the protection of the environment that are in force in Lao PDR.

VLRC undertook in 2005 a survey, of a pedological nature only, of the area to identify the lands suitable for rubber plantation, and a technical and economic feasibility study, in June 2006. The Consultant is not aware of other documents that would have been submitted in early 2005 to the Government to obtain the formal approval to start the plantation in the rainy season 2005.

VLRC has taken a different approach for the development of the plantation from what was agreed in the ALA: Surveys of the plantation are undertaken once the plantations have been established and are then submitted for concessionary approval to the Government which is then placed in front of a fait accompli, with the associated impacts to deal with.

The ALA, in its article 16, creates a Cooperative Advisory Committee for the purpose of monitoring and assisting with implementation of the Project, which is the appropriate body for revision of the provisions and covenants of the Agreement. This Committee, which should include representatives of the various technical services of the Government, should be convened regularly to monitor compliance of the project with the Agreement and, if necessary, revise the Agreement.
This Cooperative Advisory Committee was not operational at the technical level in November 2006.

4 - Pre-feasibility study

A pre-feasibility study was undertaken by GERUCO. Its main findings are the following:

- The Concession given in the Bachiang district is, based on the experience and expertise of GERUCO, suitable for the development of a rubber plantation on the basis of the land, the soil, and the climate.
- Only 7 villages are considered to be impacted by the project, the majority of them belonging to the Lao Loum group[3], and having their economy based on the agriculture. If the agricultural production is said to have improved in the recent years, the agricultural economy is qualified in the pre-feasibility report as being "instable".
- The investment in rubber plantation and rubber processing factory is relevant considering the current international market and its future prospects.
- A schedule for plantation is proposed, as are the varieties and the methods to be used for the development of the plantation and the operation.
- It is estimated that the average yield for one cycle of plantation (20 years) could be 1.8 T/ha/an, or 360,000 T for one cycle of production. The capacity of the rubber processing factory is set at 18,000 T/year.
- At this stage, products considered were: Technically Specified Rubber (TSR), latex sheets, and centrifuge latex.
- The principles for the organization of the VLRC were set and the companies that will own the VLRC were selected (initially Dau Tieng, Ba Ria, Binh Long, Phu Rieng, Tay Ninh, Quang Tri[4]).
- Requirements in terms of workforce were set at 3,743 individuals, including 3,300 workers on the plantation.
- The total cost of investment was estimated at US$34.7M, or an investment of US$3,473 per ha of plantation, including the processing or US$2,275/ha for the plantations only.
- The part of the investment coming from the shareholding companies was set at US$15.9M and the loan requested to AFD at US$18.8M.
- Net benefit was calculated at US$233.6 per T for a market price of US$1000/T, or US$168M for 20 years, with the same market price of US$1000/T.
- The revenues of the project to the national budget of GOL were estimated at US$56.8M for the duration of the project (obviously the 20 year cycle), with the following breakdown:
    - US$1.7M for the land lease;
    - US$45M in taxes;
    - US$10M from taxes on workers income.

The overall recommendation of the pre-feasibility study was to go ahead with the implementation of the Project.

[3] Both assessments are wrong. There are at least 33 villages impacted by the project, possibly more if the 19,000 ha are considered. There are 9 to 10 different ethnic groups in the area.
[4] By the time of the feasibility study, the shareholders were brought to 8 companies, with the addition of GERUCO and Hoa Binh Joint Stock Company.

5 - Feasibility study

The feasibility study was undertaken by the CROP Company for GERUCO in June and July 2006. It reviewed the technical, financial, social and environmental aspects of the project, and updated a number of aspects of the pre-feasibility study.

The feasibility study is globally positive although it raises a number of concerns on social issues, in particular in relation to:

- Insufficient compensation provided by VLRC to villagers who have lost their lost land and their source of revenues;
- Provision of employment, which should be done in priority to households who have lost their lands;
- Employment contracts, social security, and conditions of work, which have all to be clarified.

On these aspects, the Feasibility Study was calling for an operationalisation of the Authorisation and Licence Agreement signed between GERUCO and GOL.

The following technical and financial parameters were updated:

- The total investment was now calculated to be US$35.9M, with US$13.7M from the shareholding companies and US$19.75M from the AFD loan.
- The total production was set at 370,800 T for a 20 year cycle.
- Net benefit for the VLRC was calculated at US$247M for a 20 year cycle (market price for rubber set at US$1,500/T[5]).
- Revenues to GOL were calculated to be US$73.5M for a 20 year cycle, excluding revenues from workers income tax.

6 - Contribution to the economic development of Champasack Province

Financial projections made in the feasibility study estimate the expected revenues that will be obtained by GOL from the Project on 25 years of activities at a total of US$86.8M during a cycle of 25 years, or US$3.4M per year. This is broken down as follows.

Table 1 - Projected revenues for GOL, 25 years (source: CROP Feasibility Study).

Source of revenues	Value (in US$)
Taxes on contractors	45,714
Plantation Workers Income taxes	6,023,440
Industrial Workers Income taxes	161,906
Vietnamese workers Income taxes	66,819
Corporate and benefit taxes	79,076,000
Land lease fees	1,530,000
Total	86,858,165

Note: Financial projections are made considering an equal parity between US$ and €.

The ALA exempts the Company of land lease fees for the first seven years on the Agreement (US$8.5/ha/year as per the pre-feasibility study) and of income tax until the third year of operation of the plantation (article 13).

In addition to direct financial contributions, the Project will develop local expertise in developing and operating rubber plantations and in operating rubber processing factory in Laos.

[5] The feasibility study considered unlikely that the price of rubber will go below US$1,500/T , considering that price in July 2006 was above US$2,500/T and considering the important demand for rubber on the international market.

7 - Lao Policy, Legal & Administrative Framework

Over the last decade GOL has developed and updated a number of regulations and policies related to environmental and social impacts of development projects, and to employment conditions. The main legal instruments directly relevant to the Project, such as the Environmental Protection Law, the Forestry Law, the Land Law, the Prime Minister Decree on Compensation and Resettlement of development project, but also the Labour Law and the Decree on Social Security, are presented below.

Environmental Protection Law, 1999

The Environmental Protection Law was approved on the 3rd of April 1999. Basic principles are that whoever causes damage to the environment is responsible for the impact. Natural resources, raw materials and energy shall be used in an economical way to minimize pollution and waste and allow for sustainable development (art. 5). Important provisions of the Law include: Development projects and activities that have the potential to affect the environment shall require an Environmental Impact Assessment (art. 8) that has to be reviewed by STEA for approval before the start of the activities. There is also the obligation to control pollution in accordance with environmental quality standards (art. 22) set forth in regulations. A regulation on Environmental Assessment was issued in 2000.

Forestry Law, 1996

The Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry (MAF) administers the Forestry Law, approved on the 11th of October 1996. The Forestry Law includes the following general provisions: all organizations have obligations to protect and conserve forest resources including watersheds, wildlife and the environment (art. 8); GOL is responsible for allocating the use of forest lands and resources; in the management of forest resources, MAF has the right and responsibility to perform an executive, regulatory and advisory role to the government in the development of programmes, projects and legislation (art. 60).

Land Law, 2003 and land titling legislation

The Land Law, as amended on the 21st of October 2003, is the key legislation covering the rights and procedures related to tenure, access, use and management of land. It is based on the Land Law of 1997. PM Decree 3 and MAF Instruction 822 implement provisions of the Land Law regarding the allocation and zoning of forestland within village boundaries. Decisions of the Ministry of Finance (996, 997 and 998) govern land titling whereas PM Decree 150 governs land tax issues.
The implementation of the land titling programme is guided by three Ministerial Directives: MD No 996/MoF, 24 June 1998, MD No 997/MoF, 24 June 1998, and MD No 998/MoF, 24 June 1998.

PM Decree 192, 7 July 2005, on the Compensation and Resettlement of Development Project.

The Prime Minister Decree 192/PM of the 7th of July 2005, completed by the regulation issued on its implementation, defines, in detail, the "principles, rules and measures to mitigate adverse social impacts and to compensate damages that result from involuntary acquisition or repossession of land". The objective of the decree is "to ensure that project affected people are compensated and assisted to improve or maintain their pre-project incomes and living standards, and are not worse off than they would have been without the project."

The basic principles are based on:

- A proper assessment of socio-economic impacts of the project;
- adequate planning to avoid, mitigate and compensate these impacts;
- meaningful consultation and participation with affected persons;
- fair compensation to affected persons (APs) for their lost assets;
- assistance during the transition period before their income and living conditions are stabilized;
- Restoration of income;

- Respect of local culture and practices.

In particular the PM Decree 192, in its article 4, gives the responsibility to the project owner, VLRC in our case, to:

a) "Carry out necessary surveys and field investigations, identify affected communities, prepare inventory of impacts by types and degree, determine capacity to take and implement mitigation measures […]. Project owners must provide appropriate funding to assist, support, relocate A[ffected]P[eople] and to implement income rehabilitation measures and to prepare necessary plans in an efficient and timely manner and approved by the concerned agencies […];
b) Make every attempt so that displacement and other direct adverse impacts on peoples' assets and income are avoided or, if unavoidable, minimized by examining all design options available to the project;
c) Be responsible for the timely provision of adequate budget for all aspects of planning, implementing, monitoring and evaluating all resettlement and compensation activities;
d) Pay particular attention to the needs of the poorest affected people, and vulnerable groups that may be at high risk of impoverishment. Appropriate assistance must be provided to help them improve their socio-economic status."

The principles of compensation are detailed in the article 6 of the PM Decree 192, which indicates that "Project owners shall compensate project affected people for their lost rights to use land and for their lost assests […] affected in full or in part, at replacement cost" and that "APs […] who do not have any legal Land Use Certificate or any other acceptable proof indicating land use right to the affected land and assets they occupy shall be compensated for their lost assets at replacement cost and provided additional assistance to ensure that they are not worse-off due to the project."

The Article 7 of PM Decree 192 deals with the assistance that has to be provided by the project owner during the transition period: "A[ffected]P[erson]s […] affected due to the loss of income and livelihood shall be provided with the following assistance until their income levels and living conditions can be stabilized […] food allowance, in cash or in kind and cash to compensate for income lost, during the transition period […], suitable development assistance […] during the transition period until they are able to restore their incomes or improve their living standards."

The Article 12 of PM Decree 192 is about public participation and consultation and states that "the project owners shall [… ensure] that APs, local authorities and other stakeholders are fully informed and consulted and their concerns are taken into consideration at all stages of the project cycle, particularly during the planning and implementation phases of the land acquisition, valuation […] process." And that "Project owners shall make concerted efforts for an effective public dissemination of information about the objectives of the project, the compensatory package […] through the mass media such as newspapers, radio, TV or public meeting and other means to inform local authorities at provincial, district and village levels and mass organizations, APs and other concerned people as necessary."

Article 13 of PM Decree 192 presents the grievance mechanism that has to be put in place by the project owners and at their cost.

Labour Law, 1999

Decree 24/PR of the President of the Lao Republic, dated 21st April 1994, promulgated the Labour Law 002/NA of the 14th of March 1994, which purpose is to regulate employment relationships, to make the best use of workers' abilities to ensure national social and economic development, to enhance the efficiency and productivity of society and to improve workers' living conditions (art. 1).
The Law indicates in its article 2 that employers shall provide workers with fair wages, safe working conditions and social protection.

The Law prescribes general labour management rules, such as priority to be given to Lao citizens and prior conclusion of an employment contract between the parties (art. 6), establishment of a detailed scheme for the transfer of skills from foreign workers to Lao workers (art. 7), training to be organized and paid by the Employer to enable Lao workers to gradually become skilled and specialized (art. 8), social protection of workers (art. 8).

The conclusion and termination of employment contract is detailed in chapter III of the Law. In particular article 12 states that an employment contract must be concluded in writing and must stipulate work or functions to be performed. Article 13 gives the possibility to enter into verbal contract for work of a very temporary nature, such as on a daily basis. Article 15 stipulates how a fixed term or an indefinite contracts can be terminated, and terms of termination.

Article 25 indicates that hours of work shall not, for normal types of activities, exceed eight hours per day, six days per week, or 48 hours per week and article 27 indicates that overtime shall not exceed 30 hours per month, with each overtime period not exceeding three hours. Article 28 clearly indicates that workers have the right to one full day of weekly rest; article 29 entitles workers to sick leave with full pay for up to 30 days per year; and article 30 entitles workers to 15 days of annual leave per year with full pay, in addition to weekly rest days and official holidays.

In relation to women, Article 33 regulates the work of women, in particular forbidding work during the night from 10 pm to 5 am; article 35 entitles them to 90 days of maternity leave with full pay; and article 36 entitles them to receive a maternity benefit.

The work of persons between 15 and 18 years old is allowed provided that they do not work for more than six hours per day or 36 hours per week and are not employed to perform arduous work or work which is damaging to their health (art. 37).

Article 38 states that salary is to be paid either at the beginning or at the end of the month, and on time (art. 41) and article 39 indicates that all workers shall be entitled to receive equal salaries for work of equal quantity, quality, and value, without any discrimination as to sex, age, nationality or ethnic origin. Article 41 stipulates that workers have the right to ask their employer for clarification of the calculation of their salaries.

Chapter IX of the Law stipulates that the employer shall deduct income tax from salaries (art. 47) and that workers and employer shall contribute to the social security fund (see below Decree 207/PM, 23 Dec 1999).

Chapter X, about labour protection, stipulates that the employer shall be responsible for ensuring that the workplace is safe and not dangerous to the workers' health and details the measures that should be taken in its article 49, and raises in its article 50, medical examination and health care for workers. Chapter XI deals with occupational injury and disease and the associated responsibility of the employer, in particular in terms of compensation.

Chapter XII sets the basis of a pension scheme and compensation system, and associated payments due by the employer.

Decree 207/PM on Social security system for enterprise employees, 1999

The decree 207/PM of the 23rd of December 1999, sets out the principles, regulations, organizations, procedures and measures to ensure employees' social welfare rights and benefit with the objective of improving their living conditions and contributing to national socio-economic development. In its article 2 the Decree indicates that employees and employers are required to participate to the compulsory social security scheme. The Decree deals with social security issues, such as medical care for the insured persons and their families (Chapter 4), sickness benefits (Chapter 5), maternity benefits (Chapter 6), death benefits (Chapter 7), employment injury or occupational disease benefit (Chapter 8), retirement pension (Chapter 9), survivors' benefit (Chapter 10) and invalidity benefits (Chapter 11).

Convention on Climate Change, 1995

Laos became a signatory of the United Nations Convention on Climate Change on the 4th of January 1995. By doing so, GOL takes the responsibility for assuring that development in the countries meets the conditions of the convention. Some conditions that pertain to the Project include in particular the enhancement of energy efficiency; and the protection and enhancement of sinks and reservoirs of greenhouse gases, taking into account commitments under relevant international environmental agreements.

Convention on the protection of the World Cultural & Natural Heritage, 1987

GOL ratified this Convention on March 20, 1987. A presidential decree on the preservation of cultural, historic and natural heritage issued in 1997 (No 03/PR) outlines the regulations and measures for the management, conservation, preservation and use of the national heritage. The Ministry of Information and Culture is responsible for implementing the Convention.

Other international Conventions

Lao PDR ratified on the 14th of August 1980 the international convention on the elimination of all forms of discrimination against women and the convention on the rights of the child on the 8th of May 1991, addressing in particular the issue of child labour.

8 - Enforcement & Implementation of the laws relative to the Project

Environmental Protection Law. No Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) was prepared and submitted, prior to the start of the activities, in 2005, for approval to the Science, Technology and Environment Agency of GOL, despite the obligation under the Lao Environmental Protection Law for a project of this nature. It also seems that Government Authorities have not requested the preparation of this assessment. Environmental impacts have not been identified, avoided, mitigated or compensated. Unfortunately, as presented below, some obvious environmental impacts, which could have been avoided, have already materialized.

Compliance with PM Decree 192

None of the basic principles set in PM Decree 192 can be considered as been complied with by the Project.

Public participation and consultation have not reached all APs, and APs have never been consulted during the design of the project, and are not during the implementation. Clearing and preparation of the land, and compensation are done by the contractors of VLRC. The unfortunate clearing of a cemetery, is an example of this situation. VLRC claims that the company was expecting to receive a land free from any occupation.

Proper investigations and planning. Social and environmental planning is inexistent. Basic data such as the exact number of households impacted by the project, and the level of impact of the project on these households, were unknown until the Consultant started investigations.

Compensations. Compensations have been and are handled on an ad-hoc basis (see impacts section below), with obviously the objective to spend as little money as possible, instead of compensating fairly for the lost assets, especially when these assets are income generating assets. Some people are forced, or feel obliged, to accept the cash compensation offered to them.

Assistance during transition phase. No assistance is provided to the households put in the extremely difficult situation to have lost their productive assets and to have no access to employment at the VLRC. These households are in addition poor and vulnerable families. Some are in extreme distress, with the youngest thinking of leaving their village. The vulnerable households should receive dedicated assistance during this phase.

Income restoration programme and activities. They are inexistent, and up to now the Company has no plan to develop some. The Consultant is proposing a number of options.

Grievance mechanism. The Consultant is not aware of the existence of a formal grievance mechanism. The mechanism in place has not been able to deal with grievance expressed directly or indirectly by the APs, and has led to the current situation described above.

Funding by the Company to address these issues is limited, if not inexistent, and related staffing insufficient.

Labour law and Social Security Decree

A number of issues were raised during the consultations by workers employed the VLRC, such as:

- The lack of contract, and therefore the absence of guarantee of a work at the VLRC;
- The remuneration system, which is opaque to them, and leads to different remunerations for people working together;
- Having to work more than 8 hours a day;
- No day off, no sick leave, no annual leave, automatic dismissal after 3 days of absence;
- Late payment (2 weeks) of the salaries;
- Transportation of workers to site at the charge of the workers for some villages;
- The use of brokers for the recruitment of workers, and associated cost of these practices for the workers.
- At the level of the household employment of one worker (remuneration from 500,000 kips to 1 M kips) is just sufficient or insufficient, depending on the size of the household, to satisfy basic needs. Some households complained that their income level has reduced compared to their previous activities.

VLRC informed the Consultant at the beginning of October 06 that 6-month and 1-year employment contracts have started to be signed between workers and VLRC. Those contracts, in Lao and Vietnamese, lack essential information such as job description, remuneration, and conditions of employment. They are said to have been approved by the provincial authorities. They are considered by villagers more like letters of employment than contracts. Regarding social security issues, VLRC considers that in the absence of existing social security mechanisms in Champasack, there are no obligations to follow scrupulously the Decree 207/PM.

The above and the lack of a clear employment and labour policy tend to indicate that neither the principles of the Labour Law nor the principles of the Social Security Decree presented above are complied with.

PART B – PROJECT DESCRIPTION

1 – Project location

The project is located in the district of Bachiang, province of Champasack as shown on the figure below.

Thirty-three villages are directly impacted by the Project, as the 10,000 ha of plantations are located on land previously used by the villages. These villages are listed and located below.

2 – Land use of the plantation areas

Four plantations farms, varying from 2,500 ha (farms #2 to #4) to 2,800 ha (farm #1) are being developed in the district of Bachiang on suitable soils for rubber plantations. The area was mainly made of agricultural lands, unstocked forests, and mixed deciduous forests. The closest National Protected Area (NPA) is the Dong Hua Sao NPA located in the south of the district of Bachiang, not impacted by the Project. This is shown on figure 3 below prepared by the Department of Forestry and on which the 4 farms have been approximately located, as precise information was not available from the VLRC.

3 – Population

In 2005 45,739 persons populated the district of Bachiang, in 8,093 households, and 81 villages. The 33 villages impacted by the project have a total population of 12,644 persons, distributed in 2,408 households. The project is impacting a little bit less than a third of the population of the district.

At the district level, Lao Loum and Phou Thay make 40% of the population with the remaining 60% being made of fourteen Lao Theung ethnic groups, in particular the Ta Oy (15%), the Souey (8%) and the Laven (7%).

4 – Development of the Plantations

The development of the plantations is described in details in the feasibility study prepared by CROP in July 2006.

Clearing of the land is made with bulldozer, tractors and excavators. The vegetation is pushed and burnt. Agricultural tractors then plough the land for plantation, with holes made either manually or mechanically. Planting is done at a density of 555 rubber seedlings per hectare in blocks of 20 to 28 ha. Most of the blocks are contiguous.

PART C - IMPACTS

As indicated above the establishment of the industrial rubber plantation is done through the conversion of agricultural lands, plantations (fruit, timber) and fallows, into large scale rubber plantations. The environmental impacts associated with such practices are presented in the first section. The social impacts originate from the loss of agricultural lands and access to land, which was the source of revenues for the local people. These social impacts are detailed in the second section.

1 - Environmental Impacts

In September 06, rubber plantations were already established on nearly 8,000 ha out of the 10,000 ha set in the ALA, and the remaining 2,000 ha of the Concession were already cleared[6]. Environmental impacts had already materialized as described below. However in the absence of an Environmental Impact Assessment prepared prior to the start of the Project, the Consultant had no baseline to refer to to assess and quantify the extent of the environmental impacts that had occurred. There was also still no precise mapping available for the entire plantations, which made a comprehensive review of the environmental impacts impossible, unless the Consultant undertook the mapping of the 10,000 ha of the plantations, which was outside of the scope of this work. As indicated earlier this mapping is undertaken once the plantations are completed.
The environmental impacts presented below are the ones which have been observed by the Consultant during investigations by walk-over surveys.

Wildlife

The conversion of agricultural and forestry lands, even degraded, is directly impacting the existing wildlife by destroying natural habitats, and increasing vulnerability to hunting and predation.

The area was not described and considered as being a place of high biodiversity, but was obviously populated by wildlife. The closest area mapped as a National Biodiversity Conservation Area (Dong Hua Sao) is located immediately south to the project area (see figure 3). The absence of wildlife survey before the start of the project renders assessment only speculative. However it is obvious that the clearing and burning has destroyed habitats and facilitate access, hunting and fishing in this area. Captured wildlife is seen in the area of the project, and traded, as shown on the picture below.

[6] Data collected during the Sept/Oct 06 consultations indicated that 10,674 ha had already been prepared for plantation, which means that most of the land required for the 2007 planting season was already prepared.

Erosion and sedimentation

The plantations are developed in large contiguous areas (up to 1600 ha in the farm #1), which are denuded from their existing vegetation and therefore directly exposed to erosion.

From site observation, environmental impacts usually associated with large scale plantation activities have occurred (see photos 3 and 4). They are related to soil erosion, transport and sedimentation in the natural drainage, with the related impacts in terms of destruction of aquatic habitats and a direct impact in terms of expected reduced fish catch. Without prior established baseline it is impossible to measure the level of this impact and its extent downstream. One could expect that the aquatic habitats might be re-colonised, probably by a different species mix, once the vegetation cover is reestablished in the plantation in 4 to 5 years from now.

Chemicals

The Technical Division of VLRC submitted to the Consultant the list of chemicals used on the Project. The chemicals have been imported by land from Vietnam. They are listed in the following table.

Table 3 - List and quantities of chemicals used by the Project.

Commercial Names	Quantities used in 2006	Quantities imported in 2006	Quantities to be used in 2007

Storage of chemicals (pesticides, herbicides, but also fertilizer and petroleum products), but also equipment used for application, is not done in a bunded area (see photo 5 below), and therefore spillage cannot be contained, putting at risk ground water and surface water. The storage was described by VLRC as being of a temporary nature.

Photos 5 (a and b) - Uncontained storage of chemicals

During the consultations, most of the villages have expressed concerns for their health and the one of their livestock about a potential alteration of water quality due to the use of pesticides in the plantations. Surface water, which can be easily contaminated, is their main source of water.

Photo 6 - Inadequate storage of chemicals and equipment

Waste Management

The management of solid waste at the various sites is poor (see photo 7). Some of the waste is collected and recycled. The remaining is burnt, which is not good practice, especially if hazardous wastes are not separated. There is not sensitivity to the importance of the issue and the associated risks on the environment and on human health. Liquid wastes are managed in septic tanks.

Photo 7 - Poor waste and site management

2 - Social Impacts

Approximately 8,000 ha of plantations were established at the end of 2006 and more than 11,000 hectares of land are cleared[7]. Nearly all households in the Project area obtained their food and incomes from agricultural activities. Plantations are still in an early stage and therefore intercropping between the rows of rubber trees is still possible, and it is expected that this could continue for a few years, although yields will progressively decrease with the closure of the trees canopy. As some agricultural activities are still possible, the impacts have not yet reached their full level. The main impact is the loss of land affecting both food security and incomes. The social impacts associated with the development of the plantations are presented below.

Methodology

In the absence of any data, the Consultant had to undertake two rounds of consultations to identify and assess the social impacts created by the Project. These consultations had the forms of meetings,

[7] Clearing and preparation were still on-going at the beginning of November 06 despite the fact that more than the 10,000 ha granted by the Authorisation and Licence Agreement between GOL and GERUCO have already been cleared for plantation purposes.

interviews, surveys, and field transects with the villagers (photo 8). They were undertaken at the village and at the household levels by agricultural experts of the Nabong Faculty of Agriculture for the part dealing with land use and identification of potential alternatives for development and by staff of Earth System Lao for the collection of data at the level of the households. The first consultation took place from the 28th of September to the 7th of October 2006 and was undertaken by a team of 5 persons in the 33 villages impacted by the Project. The second consultation took place from the 26th of October to the 5th of November 2006 by a team of 6 persons. A database made of the data collected at the level of each household has been created. It covers 33 villages and 1,883 households out of the 2,408 households, i.e. a coverage of 78% of the households living within the Project Area. Not all households were available for the consultations and interviews, as some were harvesting their fields and some people were working at the VLRC at the time of the interview.

The main topics of the consultations and interviews were about the land, and their different types, agricultural activities, animal husbandry in the villages and in the households before and after the Project, various sources of incomes before and after the Project, compensation received from VLRC for their lands, number of people working at VLRC, number of people willing to work at VLRC and interested in smallholder rubber plantations. A summary of this data per village and household data is annexed to this report (Annexes 1 and 2).

Loss of land and access to land

The 33 villages impacted by the Project were found to have lost 83% of their agricultural lands. This major loss of land, and the loss of access to land is the most obvious and important impact for a population who generates income essentially from agricultural activities. The table below presents the remaining agricultural lands per village.

Eighteen villages, representing a population of more than 6,075 people, were left at the end of 2006 with 10% and less of their agricultural lands. Of these, 4 villages (1,073 persons) are left with no land at all. Only two villages are left with 78% and 89% of their agricultural lands. These figures have continued to evolve since the Sept-Oct consultation: Vietnamese contractors are coming back to the various villages to acquire additional land. The agricultural lands left, and which are not in negotiation for acquisition by the VLRC, consist of the soil of low fertility, such as feraltic soils, not suitable for rubber plantations, and equally not good for agricultural production.

At the level of the households, out of 1459 households, the loss of agricultural land was recorded as shown on the following figure, with 40% of the households having lost more than 80% of their agricultural lands.

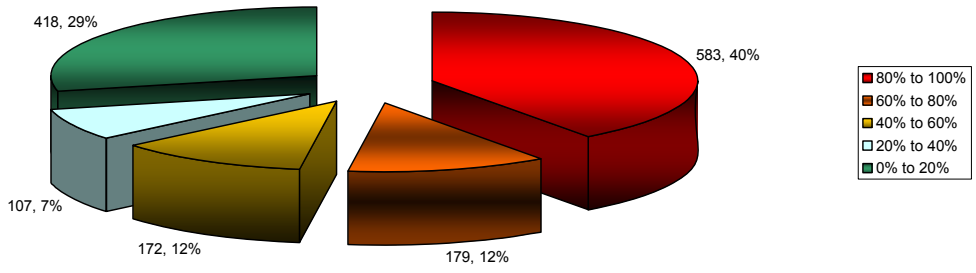

Figure 4 - Loss of agricultural land per household (number of hh, %)

Loss of source of revenues (direct and indirect)

As revenues are essentially generated from agricultural activities, a reduction of 90% and more of agricultural lands, will translate into a similar reduction in terms of revenues and food security. In addition to the direct loss of land, the transformation into plantations of lands that used to be the source of various products (NTFP, fish, grass, etc) has further reduced revenues.
As indicated below (see below employment at VLRC) this is only partly compensated by the activities offered on the plantations by VLRC.

Resettlement of Ban Thongchanh

The provincial government requested the financial assistance from VLRC to resettle Ban Thongchanh (29 households). People of Ban Thongchanh prefer to stay in their original village. Some land has been prepared for the new village, but no resettlement plan was available at the end of 2006.

Influx of workforce external to the area

Workforce external to the project area comes from Vietnam and surrounding Lao districts and provinces. Workers are accommodated within the compounds of the plantation farms or in the villages. The Consultant was not able to obtain a workforce register, showing the number and origin of the various workers involved at this stage of the Project. The situation was very fluid because of the nature of the operations and the fact that many workers are employed on a daily basis. It is estimated that they could be several hundreds of such workers. There has been no monitoring of the health situation during the last two years of the Project. It is therefore impossible to assess the health impacts created by the Project, in particular in terms of STD and HIV/AIDS. Based on the experience of projects of this nature, the incidence of such diseases could increase in particular if no measures are taken. Incidentally, villagers were concerned that the value of the dowry has been multiplied by up to tenfold since Vietnamese workers have started to marry Laotian women.

Monetary compensation provided by VLRC and associated problems

1 - VLRC approach to compensation

During the 2005 planting season (1640 ha of plantation, 1726 ha of land cleared, 6 Vietnamese contractors for the clearing), VLRC was directly involved in the compensation process. The principles of the process are described as follows by VLRC. Following a survey of the land involving Lao authorities (district, village, and sometime province), the owner of the land and the company, the company offered an amount of money for the compensation of the land to the Lao authorities, which was then communicated to the land owner, and then either accepted or rejected. In case of refusal, VLRC tried to convince the village and the land owner about the benefits that people will get if their land was handed over to the company (employment, school, water supply …). Monetary compensation was paid once the agreement was obtained.

During the 2006 planting season the organization and the responsibility of the compensations was delegated to the 21 Vietnamese contractors involved in the clearing of the land, taking the role of VLRC.
No detailed guidelines were provided for the cash compensation of lands to the contractors by VLRC or GOL. Contractors have taken different approaches, some paying more than others for monetary compensation of the same type of agricultural land, and some having a more "aggressive" approach in terms of clearing of the land.

The Consultant was not able to obtain from VLRC the total amount, and its breakdown, of compensation paid so far. We understand that the process is continuing and it might take time before this information is consolidated as compensations were dealt with directly between the land owner and the Vietnamese contractors.

2 - Status of compensation

The meeting hold on the 14th of September 06 at the District Office, with 11 heads of villages, but without any household represented, led initially the Consultant to think that there were no major issues with monetary compensation offered to villagers and accepted by them. This was proven to be wrong by the consultations undertaken at the village level in the presence of the households, during both the first round of consultation in September/October 2006 and the second round of consultations in October/November 2006. The compensation part of the consultation, which was only one of the topics of the consultation, had to be seriously moderated, to avoid having this event transformed into a grievance meeting. The participation of villagers was always very high, with all of them participating very actively. It was not the objective of this first round of consultation to collect all grievances from all households, as this would have required a dedicated consultation on this topic, but to obtain an idea of the situation and of the main types of grievance related to the compensation process. There are probably several hundreds cases of this nature, and the overall feeling in each village is that compensation has not been fair.

In the case of Ban Thi 8, for example, which is one village that has lost all of its agricultural land, rice growing land was compensated at the following rates in the same village: 0.1, 0.28, 0.29, 0.41, 0.5, 0.9 M k/ha. The average market price is around 2.5 M k per hectare.

3 – Main compensation issues

The main issues associated with compensation claimed by households during the consultations in the 33 villages are as follows:

- Rates of compensation considered too low (cases for all villages).
    - 3 ha coffee/makneng plantation compensated at 4M kips when annual income from the plantation was 14M kips (Ban Houayseuay);
    - Coffee plantation compensated for an amount of 500,000 kip per ha, when annual income generated from the plantation is 2Mk per year.

  - Compensation of a 2ha, 1500 trees, 7-year old teak plantation at 2,000 kips (US$0.2) per tree (owner values each tree at 20,000 kips (US$2));
  - 75 teaks, diameter 20-30 cm, 10-15 year old, compensated at 5,000 kip per tree.
  - 7-year old plantation of teak compensated at 300,000 kips when the owner claimed he invested 2M kips in this plantation;
  - In Ban Kang 8, seven families were offered 1000-2000 kips per teak;
  - Pineapple plantation (1500 plants) compensated at 200,000 kips (owner values his plantation at 500,000 kips);
  - Land compensated at a rate of 300,000 kips/ha at Ban Thi 10, 500,000 kips at Ban Thi 9, 200,000 and 700,000 kips/ha at Ban Oudomsouk, when market rates are from 1M to 5M per ha depending on the access and the fertility of the soil;
- Absence of compensation for land for which owner has no land certificate, but has been using the land for a long period of time (situation varies depending on villages);
- Clearing of land done before reaching an agreement with the owner (cases for most villages);
- Clearing of land completed before any discussion with the land owner (cases for all villages);
- Overall feeling that the households were forced to give their lands, and to accept the compensation, even if it was too low, as it was considered better to have some money than nothing (most villages);
- Clearing beyond the area agreed upon, too close to agricultural land and village (most villages);
- Difficult communication with Vietnamese contractors, and misunderstanding on the nature of the agreement (various villages);
- No respect of commitment made at the time of the agreement (promise of employment not respected; extent of clearing);
- Pushing debris on agricultural land making them unusable, and no corrective measures taken or compensation provided (a number of villages);
- Lack of rule for compensation, which makes compensations different in each village, some families being compensated for their land, some not, and receiving different amounts of money (see above).
- Cemetery (0.5 ha) cleared by the contractor, prior to any consultation with the village. 2M kips were given by VLRC to the village, but this has not appeased the resentment of the population. Religious ceremonies were considered necessary to appease spirits and villagers were afraid that this will bring back luck to their village.

This situation has led to a lot of resentment among the population, who has the feeling to have been spoiled from their sources of income without having been provided with alternatives, and without having been paid the market price for their lands. Many villagers explained their agreement to hand over their land as the only choice that they had. Some of the poor families realize now that they have lost their lands, and for those who have not found employment they wonder how they are going to survive. This unhappiness is such that there are cases, known to VLRC, of armed people guarding their lands from the contractors, but also cases when people are considering leaving the area and to resettle somewhere else.

PART D - ENVIRONMENTAL AND SOCIAL ACTION PLANS

This part of the report presents general recommendations on how to address the environmental and social impacts created by the Project. These plans will need to be further developed with the active involvement and contribution of the VLRC, the Lao Government and authorities, and villagers: Additional information will be required from the VLRC in terms of exact location of plantations and facilities for example (information not available at the time of the mission); the social plan of the VLRC has obviously to be developed by the VLRC; and both parties will need to agree on the way to develop, fund and implement the transition and income restoration programme.

1 - Environmental Plan

The environmental plan addresses the impacts that have been identified: conversion of land into plantation, erosion and sedimentation, risk associated with chemicals, and waste management.

1.1 - Conversion to plantation and loss of habitats for wildlife

Whenever possible, patches of natural forests should be kept intact to provide refuges for wildlife until the cover of plantation is created. Buffer areas along rivers and streams need to be maintained whenever it is still possible and re-established when these have been removed. These areas should be protected from all types of activities.
Hunting and fishing should also be forbidden once the plantations are established.

1.2 - Erosion and sedimentation

To prevent and limit erosion and transport of sediments downstream, a number of sedimentation ponds need to be constructed to capture potentially turbid flow. These ponds will have to be designed according to the size of the area that they drain. Once the extent of the plantation is known, the exact location of the ponds, their types and their number can be decided.
Whenever clearing has come too close to the natural drainage, it is proposed to re-vegetate these areas to avoid further erosion. The riverine vegetation should be protected from clearing from the Company, but also from the local population. The extent of these areas will be delineated once the final plantation area is known.

1.3 - Use and storage of chemicals

The Consultant recommends that the Project adopts the registration and regulatory systems of Thailand and Vietnam. Pesticides acceptable for use must satisfy the following criteria:

- Registered in Lao PDR and not on the WHO Category I list;
- Registered in Thailand and/or registered in Vietnam;
- Not banned in Lao PDR.

The following table indicates the active ingredients with restriction in Asia/Pacific countries and those banned in Lao PDR. These pesticides are not acceptable for use in Project activities.

Storage and handling of all chemicals, including petroleum products, will have to follow international best practices in order to limit risks of pollution and potential associated human health issues.

In particular the following actions are proposed:

- All refueling of equipment and machinery shall be undertaken by a service vehicle, with appropriate safeguards and protection measures to prevent any spillage or contamination by chemical wastes or maintenance oils, lubricants, etc;
- All the fuel and hazardous material storage shall be adequately bunded to prevent any spillage problems;
- Stormwater runoff from open workshop servicing and repair areas and bunded storage areas shall be collected and treated in hydrocarbon separation pits/tanks before discharge to drains or waterways;
- Pesticides shall be packaged, labeled, handled, stored and disposed of according to acceptable standards (The Consultant recommends WB OP 4.09 Pest Management);

1.4 - Waste management plan

A waste management plan needs to be prepared with the provincial authorities with the objective to separate the various types of waste, in particular hazardous wastes.

The waste management plan shall include the following:

- A sufficient number of garbage bins and containers shall be made available at the various workshops, stores, offices and camps;
- Garbage and other waste shall be regularly collected and transported to a designated waste disposal site;

- A separate collection and storage procedure shall be developed for hazardous or toxic waste, such as batteries, unused chemicals, including hydrocarbons, disused electronic equipment, etc.
- This waste shall be stockpiled and subsequently transported to special solid waste treatment plant capable of proper disposal of such hazardous or toxic waste;
- Suitable sanitary and solid waste collection and disposal facilities or systems shall be provided at all camps, workshops, stores, offices and personnel shall be provided to operate and maintain the systems.

2 - Compensation Programme

The Consultant recommends that all compensations provided so far to households impacted are reconsidered, with the objective to provide fair and uniform cash compensation to the households using the PM Decree 192 as a reference.

This implies, in addition to the development and implementation of transition and income restoration programmes, that standard and fair compensation rates are agreed upon by the various parties.

A proper and documented consultation of this process will be required to settle down the matter permanently.

3 – VLRC Social Plan

3.1 - Introduction

As part of the overall strategy of VLRC, employment at VLRC is to provide an alternative source of income for households having lost all or a significant part of their source of income. This is not achieved at the moment, and projections made in terms of employment that will be offered over the course of the project indicate that this will not be achieved in full.

3.2 - Workforce requirements

The employment that offered by VLRC over the years of the project is presented in figure 5 below. It includes Vietnamese workers and permanent and temporary workers during the period of the development of the plantation.

The figure indicates that up to 1,322 people are expected to be employed from 2007 to 2010, increasing to 2,035 in 2011, then to 3,285 in 2012 before reaching a level of 3,776 from 2013. These figures give the limit of the number of jobs that will be provided on the plantations and factory of VLRC, and is based on the experience of GERUCO in Vietnam.

There are currently 2,408 households impacted by the Project, representing 12,644 persons. Considering the increase of the population, the number of households impacted by the Project could be up to 2,900 in 2011 and 3,150 in 2013. From the current experience of employment at VLRC, one household needs to have more than 1 person employed to reach the same level of revenues as before the Project.

3.3 - Current workforce

From the information collected during the consultations at the village level, there are currently around 1,000 people (973 as recorded during the consultation of September-October) from the 33 impacted villages working on the plantation. In addition to these there would be more than 150 Vietnamese workers and additional people coming from the provinces of Attapeu and Salavanh, and from other districts of Champasack province, in a number that is not exactly known.

In addition to the 1000 people working, 1771 persons from the 33 villages have, at this stage, expressed their interest to work on the plantation, or a total of 2,744 persons willing to work on the plantation. This is twice the number of jobs that will be offered during the period 2007 to 2010.

VLRC has currently no policy to employ in priority people from the 33 impacted villages and from households which have been the most impacted by the project in terms of lost agricultural lands. The following figure gives a representation of this situation. There are for example 4 villages, which have lost more than 80% of their agricultural lands, and which are not sending any person on a permanent basis to work on the plantations, either by lack of interest or lack of opportunity. At the opposite, Ban Samakysay where only 34% of the agricultural land has been lost sends 1.7 people per household to work on the plantations.

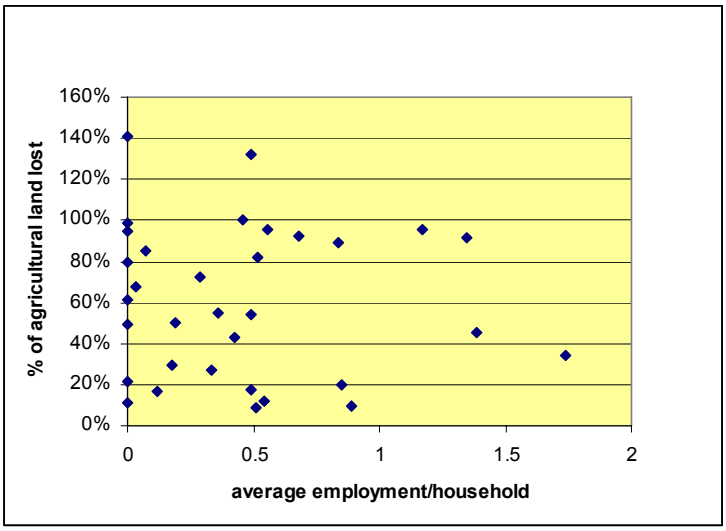

Figure 6. Employment provided on the plantation per household and per % of agricultural land lost in the various villages.

3.4 - Employment contracts

VLRC informed the Consultant that 6-month and 1-year employment contracts were started to be signed between workers and VLRC at the end of 2006 (Oct/Nov). Those contracts, in Lao and Vietnamese, lack essential information such as job description, remuneration, and conditions of employment. They would have been approved by the provincial authorities. They are considered by villagers more like letters of employment than contracts. Detailed contracts need to be prepared.

3.5 - Allocation of 8 ha of plantation per household

VLRC confirmed its intention to give the responsibility of 8 ha of plantations to each household (could be only a maximum of 1,250 households) from the 2nd year of plantation until the start of the production. However this system was not been operationalised at the end of 2006 (operations expected from household, remuneration, etc) and is therefore not yet implemented.

3.6 – Complaints about employment at VLRC

From the consultations with the 33 villages, workers complain mainly about:

- A lack of contract, and therefore the absence of guarantee of a work at the VLRC;
- The remuneration system, which is opaque to them, and leads to different remunerations for people working together;
- Having to work more than 8 hours a day;
- No day off, no sick leave, no annual leave, automatic dismissal after 3 days of absence;
- Late payment (2 weeks) of the salaries;
- Transportation of workers to site at the charge of workers for some villages;
- The use of brokers for the recruitment of workers, and associated cost of these practices for the workers.
- At the level of the household, employment of one worker (remuneration from 500,000 kips to 1 M kips) is just sufficient or insufficient, depending on the size of the household, to satisfy basic needs. Some households complained that their income level has reduced compared to their previous activities.

3.7 - Recommendations

1 - Recruitment policy

A recruitment policy needs to be developed and implemented with the objective to provide jobs in priority to the households having lost most or all of their agricultural lands, and using the information collected during the consultations.

Recruitment of workers from other districts, provinces, or countries should only be done if the impacted villages cannot provide a sufficient number of workers and if skills are not available locally. In case of such recruitment, the Company will be obliged to provide the same level of remuneration, the same conditions of employment, and appropriate accommodation and medical services and facilities.

The Company needs to be directly responsible for the recruitment of workers (permanent and temporary), and to organize and staff itself accordingly. The Company has to discontinue the use of brokers. Recruitment, in particular of temporary workers, should be anticipated as much as possible, to ensure that affected villages can provide workers. Recruitment issues have to be put on the agenda of the monthly meeting of the Project Committee.

2 – Contracts, conditions of employment and trade unions

Conditions and terms of permanent and temporary employments have to be made clear, to be easily available and need to be attached to the contracts. Vietnamese workers are paid 60% higher than Lao workers for similar tasks, which might be a source of problem in the future.

In particular simplification of the remuneration system needs to be considered, and all the rights of workers, as established under the Lao Labour Law, need to be respected, which is not the case at the moment. This includes insurance in case of accident (one fatal UXO accident was recorded on the plantation), 15 days of annual leave, sick leave and maternity leave, overtime, pension, income taxes, etc.

Trade unions, similar to the ones existing in plantations and rubber factories in Vietnam, need to be established to represent the workers.

3 - Training and professional development programmes
A detailed training programme need to be established, with the objective to develop local skills and to progressively reduce the need of supervision by Vietnamese staff.

The VLRC Social Plan, and a schedule for implementation, incorporating the above recommendations and the obligations under the existing Lao legislation are to be developed with the VLRC.

4 - Transition and Income Restoration Programmes

4.1 - Transition Programme

A transition programme is to be set up to ensure that severely affected persons (loss of 20% and more of productive generating assets and without permanent employment on the plantation) are not worse off because of the Project.
This should target in particular the 288 poor households identified during the consultations and characterized mainly by a limited access to land and only a few months of rice sufficiency.
The transition programme should ensure that these people are (1) given priority in terms of permanent employment on the plantations, and/or (2) provided with technical assistance to modify current agricultural practices, and, if necessary, and as a last resort, (3) provided with a food allowance, in cash or in kind to compensate for income lost.
According to the PM Decree 192, the cost of this transition programme has to be borne by VLRC.

4.2 - Income Restoration Programme

A number of options are available for the Income Restoration Programme. These are securing permanent employment with VLRC, developing a small holder plantation scheme, modifying agricultural practices, and development of new activities. All these should be supported by a development funds financed by VLRC.

Securing permanent employment with VLRC
This is discussed in the social plan of the Company and if all employments offered by VLRC are secured by Affected Persons, this should provide jobs for most of the 2,300 people who have expressed interest in working for VLRC. This means that on average there should be more than one person per household who will be working at VLRC, which is necessary to restore incomes to the level reached before the project, as indicated during consultations.

Small-holder plantation scheme
It is recommended that rubber plantations are returned to the households that have been severely impacted by the project, i.e. households which have lost 20% and more of their productive income generating assets[8], in an amount of 1 to 1.5 ha per household severely impacted. These will be owned by the households, which will sell the latex to VLRC at a price that will be agreed upon each year and based on the latex price in the Region. Investments made by VLRC, in terms of land preparation, plantation, treatments, technical supervision, will be reimbursed, at cost, by the small holder during the first five to seven years of production, in the form of a deduction from the agreed latex price. Households which are not interested in rubber plantation activities will have the right to sell their plantation titles. The ownership of 1-1.5 ha of plantation, associated with other agricultural activities or work on the VLRC plantation will restore, and probably increase, the income levels of the households. 854 households have expressed during the consultations their interest in owing small plantations.

[8] PM Decree 192, Article 8.

Transition towards more intensive agricultural production methods

The diagnostic of the 33 villages indicates that the agricultural lands not taken for plantations development are of poor soil conditions, and that very little land is available for conversion to agricultural use.

The main options available are production of forage and food for cattle, pigs and possibly poultry in a completely different way from what is done at the moment, as presented in Annex 3. This obviously can only be undertaken for cattle in the villages which still have some agricultural lands. The Consultant considers that swine and poultry production could be an option during the transition period, but might not be sustainable, mainly because of the lack of land. This will require substantial technical support as animal production will have to depart from traditional systems.

Development of new activities

The possibility to develop new activities, such as shops, workshops, handicraft production and sale, and supported by the Development Funds presented below, could provide income restoration activities, but for a limited number of households, at least in the short term.

All these programmes will require a clear allocation of lands in the various villages, and will require the need of land allocation/titling project.

Resettlement

For each village which has lost all or almost all of its agricultural land, this represents at least 18 villages, and for which the various households have lost their source of income, the opinion of the Consultant is that resettlement to new a location might be a solution, albeit such relocation is usually a very delicate, expensive and risky process. The option of returning plantation to the villagers is highly preferred.

Development Funds

It is recommended that the Bachiang District Development Funds (BDDF) is created and that VLRC contributes to its funding in an amount of US$400,000 per year for the first 6 years, then reduced to US$300,000 per year for the following 6 years, and then reduced to US$200,000 for the remaining of the concession period.

This funds will be managed in a professional and transparent manner at the level of the district, and with representatives of the 33 villages. A representative from the VLRC will have the right to attend the monthly meetings of the BDDF.

The Funds will be used (1) to improve basic public services provided at the district and village levels (health, education, access, electrification, water supply and sanitation, waste), (2) to provide vocational training and agricultural extension, and (3) to fund village revolving funds/microfinance activities at the village level, which could be development of micro-plantations, services, handicraft, etc.

CONCLUSION

The rubber plantation and processing factory project of the VLRC are clearly financially very attractive considering the high price of rubber on the international market. The 8,000 ha of plantations established in 2005 and 2006 are a technical success, demonstrating GERUCO technical expertise in this field. It is undeniable that the Project has the potential to contribute significantly to the economic development of Champasack Province.

However and unfortunately the very fast development of the plantation has been made possible by disregarding environmental and social safeguards, which are standard best practices and part of the Lao legislation. Major environmental and social impacts have started to materialize and have to be dealt with urgently. This could be done along the lines of the solutions proposed in this report in consultation with the various parties involved.

ANNEX 2 – DATA COLLECTED AT THE HOUSEHOLD LEVEL

Data presented in this annex below is a selection of the data that was collected by ESL staff with the assistance of district and village authorities. A detailed analysis show some discrepancies with the data collected at the level of the village. These discrepancies could have several sources, such as misunderstandings with the interviewer, wrong data inputs, over declaration of agricultural land used before the project. It gives however a good idea of the situation before and after the project, at the time of the consultation (October 06 and November 06). With the constant development of the plantation the data will need to be updated. It is proposed that it is refined during the next stages of consultation depending on the development of the components of the social plan.

ANNEX 3 - ANINAL PRODUCTION SYSTEMS (as prepared by the Nabong Experts)

TYPE OF PRODUCTION	TRADITIONAL TECHNIQUES	NEW TECHNIQUES TO BE PROMOTED
Cattle	- Raising in the open during the dry season and fastening in the rainy season in non cultivated land. - Natural forage with unlimited pasture areas, about 3-4 ha per head. - Local varieties.	- New forage species such as ruzi, stylo, cassava or others. - Complemented by natural grass. - Grazing area should be a minimum of 1 ha for 1-2 heads. - Conditions: Water supply required in particular during the dry season. Workforce available in the family, access to grazing areas and fencing. Use of improved varieties. The techniques of forage, animal feed processing and farm management need to be promoted and introduced in the villages.
Swine	- Raising in the open in the village - Natural feed (vegetable) but not sufficient. - Feeding is not varied - No disease control and diseases occurrence every year. - Local varieties.	- Raising animal will be followed up and animals raised in cages. - New forage species such as cassava or maize (for farmers having available land) or planting stylo grass as supplementary feed. - One family can raise 1-2 heads by planting forage with 2-3 ray. - Need to select adapted varieties to the areas. - Other production mode: Raising pigs by buying concentrate feed. Could be initiated in villages as a model. Pig can be sold between 3 to 5 months with 30 – 35 kg of live weight. For one family, they can do 3 cycles of swine production. - Conditions: Availability of workforce in the family (2 or 3 labors). Improved varieties. The techniques of forage, animal feed processing and farm management need to be promoted and introduced in the villages.
Goat	- Raising in the open in day time and fenced at night - Natural feed (vegetable) but not enough - Feeding is not varied - Diseases occur every year - Death of offspring - Local varieties.	- Raising animal will be followed up and dedicated areas to fasten the animals. - Cage/fence construction and providing grass for them in the small farm. - Grazing area should be followed up and access to fenced areas. - New forage species such as ruzi, stylo or others. - One family can graze 5-7 heads by releasing animal but only few villages can take this option. - Conditions: Availability of workforce in the family, having optimal grazing areas and fencing. Improved varieties. The techniques of forage, animal feed processing and farm management need to be promoted and introduced in the villages.

Poultry	- Raising in the open in day time. - Natural feed (vegetable) but not enough - Sometimes raising with rice bran and broken rice, but not enough. - Diseases occur every year - Death of animal - Local varieties	- Conditions: Availability of workforce in the family, having large grazing areas and fencing. The techniques should be fastening and releasing animals in the open. It is important to feed enough and to invest in buying feed. Vaccination should be done regularly and animal selection needs to be implemented. - Promoting factors: it is important to provide technical support (raising and farm management) to the villagers and the Village veterinary Service should work regularly.
Fish	- Small pond. - Varied species such as: catfish, silver carp, Tilapia... - Natural feed (vegetable) but not enough - No production technique	- Conditions: Ponds near a source of water and fund to buy varieties and feed. - Promoting factors: it is important to provide technical support (feeding and pond management) to the villagers.
